THE ROOSTER WHO WANTED TO BE KING

A farmer had a large brood of chickens. Among them was a strong and handsome rooster. The farmer loved this rooster very much. He was the pride of the brood.

Knowing this, the rooster soon became proud and rude to the other chickens.

He was impossible to live with as he was always boasting.

"I should be your king, you know. I am the strongest animal in this world," he told the chickens.

A brown hen spoke up. "You may be the strongest in this coop but there is an animal in the forest which is stronger than you," she said. The rooster was shocked with this statement.

"Who is he? Take me to him and I will show you who is stronger," said the proud rooster.

The chickens led the rooster to the fox's den. They did not dare go near the den but the rooster went on.

He thought he was invincible and everyone would be afraid of him.

The fox came out of the den. The rooster sprang at the fox and scratched his face.

The angry fox caught hold of the rooster's neck, broke it and had a good meal of the rooster.
