THE COW WITH A SORE EYE

The cow was grazing in the field.

He looked around with great satisfaction.

"What a beautiful day! It is so peaceful here," he thought, looking at his friends, the birds, the squirrel on a tree and the farmer's dog.

Suddenly, there was a loud caw of a crow as she flew near the cow. The cow's mood changed. He became angry and said to himself, "How I dislike that crow. It is so noisy."

One day, a speck got into the cow's right eye. Soon his eye became sore. He could not bear the pain and called out to his friends to try and get the speck out of his eye.

The birds, the squirrel and the dog all said they were afraid to help him in case they got infected by the germs.

The pain became s o bad that the cow started to cry. The crow heard him cry and flew up to him.

"Is there something wrong? Can I help you?" she asked the cow.

The cow told her about his sore eye. The crow flew nearer and checked the eye.

"There is a tiny piece of grass stuck in your eye. Here, let me pick it out," said the crow, gently pulling out the grass with its beak.

The cow felt better at once. He could see clearly.

"Thank you, crow. You have taught me who my real friend is," the cow said. چێل ل ناڤ زەڤىێ دچەرى. وێ ب دلەكێ خۆش ل دەوروبەرێن خۆ دنێرى.
