THE SILLY VILLAGE HEADMAN

A goat was eating grain from a clay container. Suddenly, its neck got stuck in the container. The farmer tried to pull it out but in vain. He ran to the village headman for help.

The headman came riding on his horse. He could not enter the farmer's barn because the door was too small. The headman asked the farmer to pull down the door to make way for him to enter the barn.

The farmer was confused with what the headman wanted. However he did as he was told.

Once he was inside the barn, the headman saw the goat with its head stuck in the container.

"No problem," he said and took his knife and chopped off the goat's head.

The farmer was shocked by the action of the headman.

"But the goat's head is still in the container," said the farmer.

"No problem," said the headman and with the handle of his knife he broke the container into pieces.

The poor farmer stared at the headman with utter amazement and could not speak. He sat in a daze. Not only was his barn door broken he had also lost his goat.
