THE SICK WOLF AND THE CLEVER LAMB

The wolf had not eaten for days because he was too sick to go out to find a meal. To make things worse a pack of wild dogs came into his cave and chased him out. He found a hole and hid himself.

He was feeling really miserable. He thought some fresh air and sunshine would do him good.

So he went for a walk. He came to a river where he saw a little white lamb on the other side.

He started to feel hungry. He wondered how he could get hold of the lamb and make himself a delicious meal.

Then he got an idea. The wolf pretended to have hurt his hands.

He called to the lamb: "Little lamb, could you please bring me some water from the river. I am hurt and weak. If you give me a drink, I would have the energy to find food."

The lamb looked at the wolf and said: "If I bring you something to drink, then you will already have found yourself something to eat!" The lamb knew that the wolf was trying to trap her.

The lamb quickly ran back to the safety of her flock and told her mother all that had happened. After listening to the whole story, the mother lamb spoke to all her children.

*Please be careful when you're out side alone. There is so much danger out there."
